LEADING THROUGH INNOVATION

For a national media empire, Hubbard Broadcasting had surprisingly modest beginnings. In the early 1920s, a 26-year-old named Stanley E. Hubbard launched a tiny Twin Cities radio station and the Hubbards have been making groundbreaking advances in media and journalism for nearly a century.

The family's entrepreneurial and innovative spirit supports our school's mission to prepare students for careers in a wide variety of specializations within the ever-changing industry of journalism and strategic communication.

Join us. And embrace some of the most important elements of great journalism and communication: tenacity, ambition and an openness to new ideas.
