

Newspapers are dying? Heck no...far from it!

People still want the news. People still need the news. People still trust information printed in their local newspaper far more than information found online or on tv. Newspapers continue to have a solid impact in the communities they serve.